Population Change in Pilsen

Total population change was relatively steady in Pilsen from 1980 to 2000, with a range between 44,031 and 45,654. However, there was a total population decrease in Pilsen from 2000 to 2010 of an estimated 8,262 individuals. There was also a smaller total population decrease from 2010 and 2014-2018 by an estimated 2,980 individuals in Pilsen. Pilsen lost an estimated 11,242 individuals from 2000 to the period of 2014-2018. (See Figure 1)

Pilsen's total population change from 1990 to 2014-2018 trends with the Latino population. The year 1980 is an exception as it still had a significant white population, estimated at 9,223. As total population loss occurred from 2000 to 2010, the Latino population also decreased by an estimated 9,664 people in the same period. From 2010 to the period of 2014-2018, the Latino population decreased by an estimated 5,211 individuals. Pilsen lost an estimated 14,875 Latinos from 2000 to 2014-2018. While there was significant decrease in the population of Latinos from 2000 to 2014-2018, there was not a significant increase in population in other race and ethnic categories to offset the population loss in Pilsen. The White alone population increased by an estimated 2,417 individuals from 2000 to 2014, far below the figures of total population loss in the same period. The estimated Black alone population remained relatively steady in the same period.

Pilsen lost an estimated 10,859 individuals below age 25 from 2000 to 2014-2018. Pilsen lost an estimated 5,119 school age children (ages 5 to 17) in the same period. The age cohort of 18 to 24 year olds also decreased by an estimated 2,715 people. The cohort under age 5 was the largest to decrease from 2000 to 2014-2018 at an estimated 3,025 individuals. Similar to total population decreases, the increases in the other age cohorts was not sufficient to offset the age cohort decreases. From 2000 to 2014-2018, the population increased by an estimated 1,768 individuals age 55 years and older. (See Figure 2)

What the two charts illustrate is that gentrification in Pilsen is not occurring via racial and ethnic displacement, but of population flight, and the increases in population of other race and ethnic groups is not offsetting the population decline of Latinos. A very telling statistic is the overall age decrease in children under age 18 that suggest that Latino families are moving out. Young adult age cohorts, 18 to 24 year olds, are also declining in Pilsen.

Changes in Pilsen Housing

The composition of renters and owners is very important to understand the impact of statistics such as gross rents and house values of owner-occupied units. From 2000 to 2014-2018, owner-occupied units increased an estimated 8.4%. To give this some context, owner-occupied units in Chicago increased by 5.2%. Pilsen's increase in owner-occupied housing falls roughly along the City of Chicago's trend. However, Pilsen overall has a much larger amount of renter occupied units despite the increase. In the period of 2014-2018, an estimated 65.7% of housing units in Pilsen were renter occupied, which is an estimated 14.7% higher than the City of Chicago. (See Figure 3)

Since Pilsen has a majority its housing units as renter-occupied, the change in gross rents is important. The largest categorical change from 2000 to 2014-2018 occurred in gross rents of $300 to $599, which decreased by an estimated 21.6% in that period. In 2000, an estimated 88.1% of gross rents were less than $999. From 2000 to 2014-2018, gross rents below $999 decreased by 27.7% to an estimated 60.4%. From 2000 to 2014-2018, gross rents of $1,000 and above increased by 39.7%. (See Figure 4)

The data on gross rent points to a trend in increased gross rents overall from the 2000 to the period 2014-2018 period. Cost-burdened renters, households that pay more than 30% of their household income on rent, increased by 11.6% from 2000 to 2014-2018. (See Figure 5)

Source: 2018 American Community Survey, 5 year estimates, 2000 Decennial Census.
Tabulated by Great Cities Institute.

Given the large increases in gross rents and an increase in cost-burdened households that rent, it is important to see how household income in Pilsen changed. The change is surprising by how modest household income changes were from 2000 to 2014-2018. From 2000 to the period of 2014-2018, households earning $50,000 and above increased by 5.2%. While this was an increase, overall household income change was modest. Again, this points to the significance of overall population loss, especially among Latino family households, versus displacement. (See Figure 6)

Housing values of $150,000 and above increased by an estimated 9% from 2000 to 2014-2018. From 2000 to 2014-2018, houses valued from $100,000 to $149,000 decreased by 9.6%, the largest single categorical change. (See Figure 7)

For housing units with a mortgage, from 2000 to 2014-2018 changes in monthly owner costs as a percentage of household income in Pilsen were modest. Households paying more than 50% of their household income on monthly owner costs was the most change at a marginal 3.6% from 2000 to 2014-2018. (See Figure 8)

Demolitions and Deconversions of Pilsen Housing Units

The Lower West Side (Pilsen) Community Area had lower demolition permits filed per year from 2009 to 2019 than the average. However, this average is skewed to the much higher volume of demolition permits filed in the community areas with the most demolition permits. For example, West Town had the most demolition permits filed from 2009 to 2019 with 902 demolition permits filed. During the same period, Fuller Park had the median amount of permits filed with 67 total permits. In that context, Pilsen ranks 27 out of 77 community areas in total demolition permits in the 10-year period from 2009 to 2019. (See Figure 9)

Of the top ranked community areas for demolition permits filed, 10 of those community areas have experienced significant population loss mostly derived from black population loss from 1980 to the period of 2013-2017 including West Englewood, Englewood, Austin, Roseland, West Pullman, North Lawndale, and West Garfield Park.<sup>1</sup> (See Figure 11)

Two community areas that are highly ranked in demolitions have also experienced gentrification or increased gentrification due to developments such as the 606 Trail. These community areas include Logan Square and Humboldt Park.<sup>2</sup> Given the gentrification in those two community areas after the development of the 606 Trail, the planned Paseo Trail in the Pilsen neighborhood has the potential to be a driver of future gentrification in Pilsen

From 2006 to 2019, Pilsen had more estimated deconversions of buildings than the average for 9 years in the 14-year period. (See Figure 10) Those years include:

- 2006 with 6 de-conversions
- 2009 with 4 de-conversions
- 2010 with 6 de-conversions
- 2011 with 6 de-conversions
- 2013 with 4 de-conversions
- 2014 with 6 de-conversions
- 2015 with 8 de-conversions
- 2016 with 9 de-conversions
- 2018 with 7 de-conversions
- 2019 with 4 de-conversions.

Figure 10: Estimated Deconversions in the Lower West Side (Pilsen) Compared to the Mean, Minimum, and Maximum, 2006 to 2019

Similar to total demolitions, the average is skewed by the higher volume of deconversions in the highest ranked community areas for estimated deconversions. In total deconversions from 2006 to 2019, the Lower West Side (Pilsen) ranked 16th out of the 77 community areas with 69 estimated deconversions. The median for deconversions in that period is 23.5, which encompasses the community areas of Auburn Gresham and Dunning. (See Figure 12)

Data Note: Supply (retail sales) estimates sales to consumers by establishments. Sales to businesses are excluded. Demand (retail potential) estimates the expected amount spent by consumers at retail establishments. Supply and demand estimates are in current dollars. The Leakage/Surplus Factor presents a snapshot of retail opportunity. This is a measure of the relationship between supply and demand that ranges from +100 (total leakage) to -100 (total surplus). A positive value represents 'leakage' of retail opportunity outside the trade area. A negative value represents a surplus of retail sales, a market where customers are drawn in from outside the trade area. The Retail Gap represents the difference between Retail Potential and Retail Sales. Esri uses the North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) to classify businesses by their primary type of economic activity. Retail establishments are classified into 27 industry groups in the Retail Trade sector, as well as four industry groups within the Food Services & Drinking Establishments subsector.
