University Administration

Director, UIC Great Cities Institute, College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs, 2012- present

The Mission of the UIC Great Cities Institute is to link its academic resources with a range of partners to address urban issues by providing research, policy analysis and program development. Tied to the University of Illinois Chicago Great Cities Commitment, GCI seeks to improve quality of life in Chicago, its metropolitan region, and cities throughout the world.

By harnessing the power of engaged research, Great Cities Institute:

- Advances conversations on key issues,
- Promotes community economic development strategies,
- Produces, with neighborhoods, commercial revitalization, and quality of life plans,
- Provides data and technical assistance,
- Facilitates collaboration and public engagement,
- Assists with mentorship, training, and capacity building,
- Conducts policy and impact analyses,
- Convenes local, national, and international scholars.

Chair, Community and Regional Planning Program, School of Architecture & Planning, University of New Mexico, June 1, 2008- August 2012

The mission of the Community and Regional Planning Department is to plan and advocate with communities, especially in the Southwest, for just and sustainable futures by delivering professional education, providing service, and engaging in transformative research. The department provides quality education to support planning that is responsive to people and place and offering different paths to affect change. We work with communities to create community-based plans, programs, and policies, and to recognize and mobilize existing community capacity. The purpose is to sustain and enhance culture, natural and built environments, economic vitality, and social justice.

Director, Resource Center for Raza Planning, School of Architecture and Planning, 1996-2006

RCRP's mission is to promote the sustainability and survivability of traditional communities in New Mexico. The Center engages in research, policy writing and analysis, public participation, strategic and sector planning, design and curriculum development, economic development, infrastructure (water, sewer, drainage, road improvement), land use, neighborhood development, agricultural preservation, and youth development. Students involved in the Center become successful professionals who contribute to their communities' future.

Acting Director, Women Studies, Summers 1993 and 1994, University of New Mexico
